JOHN W. DOZIER, JR.

WE PICK OUR FIGHTS AND, IN THIS BUSINESS,
YOU BETTER KNOW WHEN TO HOLD 'EM, AND KNOW WHEN TO FOLD 'EM.

INTERNET LAW SPECIALIST In the world of the Internet, nothing stays the same. The technology of the Internet constantly evolves. The business of the Internet is in a seemingly constant state of innovation. The law of the Internet, set out in court decisions and state, federal and international laws, seems to always be well behind the curve of the technology and business advances. In such a state, doing business on the web is a risky proposition. To manage the risk effectively, companies from around the world turn to John W. Dozier, Jr. for assistance in making smart decisions.

ENTREPRENEUR, TECHNOLOGIST, HIRED GUN

John is not your typical "internet attorney." An entrepreneur at heart, he founded his first e-commerce company in February 1994, at a time when the web was in its infancy. Three years later, his award winning emerging technology company became one of the first venture fund backed businesses in his region, leading John (the architect of an integrated software, EDI, and ASP system for major financial institutions) on a wild ride on the Internet bubble. In 2001, John's interest returned him to the practice of law, where in the 1980s he had earlier honed his litigation skills with hundreds of first chair trials and his legislative and negotiation skills as a lobbyist, and this time he focused exclusively on Internet law litigation. He's the hired gun when a business gets in trouble, a role he relishes. "It's always nice to feel like you have a handle on the technology, the business, and the law. We get involved in some of the most leading edge matters in the world; nothing is as exciting and challenging as trying to figure out where the law of the case leads, and nothing is as gratifying as finding a solution for a client that others never even considered", he says. And as for his "Bull Dozier" nickname given him by opposing litigators for his tenacity and fierce competitiveness, John laughs at the nickname but does not take exception to it. "We pick our fights and, in this business, you better know when to hold 'em, and know when to fold 'em. We do a real good job of figuring that out."
